WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The House closed its work to-day with one of the livellest somes of the session. The Lard bill was pending when the House adjourned on Satur-day and the claim of the friends of the bill that it was the regular order for this morning was vigorously contested, and a technical debate on parliamentary law followed. The Speaker finally ruled in favor of the bill.

* Mr. Cannon offered a resolution calling attention to this fact and asking for an order to make a repetition of the act impossible. In the preamble to that resolution the names of about twenty members were given, including those of Blount (Ga.), Flower and Turner (N. Y.) and Crain (Ga.). Flower and Turner (N. Y.) and Crain (Tex.). These gentlemen immediately grow very indignant at what they considered an attempt to consure them and to hold them up before the country for public obloquy and punishment.

Mr. Cannon said that he offered the resolution not for the purpose of consuring analytic contains the form of the facts. First, that the Honse had found itself without a quorum twice during the day; and, second, that there had been two calls of the House, and that upon those calls more than a outrum had responded, but that after the proceedings were dispensed with a quorum could not be found in the House. There was nothing in the presmble except a recital of the facts as shown by the country for public obloqued in the presmble except a recital of the facts as shown by the scound. The gentleman from Georgia said that it was a censure and the call of the facts as shown by the gentleman on that point; but if it were a censure it was a censure beased upon the facts. He recited those facts for the purpose of showing the necessity for the adoption of the resolution—namely, that one mement the Honse had a quorum and the next twenty minutes it was far short of a quorum.

Am. Turner had only one thing to deep playing to the press gallery, and the man withdraw his preamble. He found have been accomplished. He had been playing to the press gallery, and the name of the gentlemen mentioned would nave been accomplished. He had been playing to the press gallery, and the name of the parallel playing to the press gallery, and the name of the purpose of censuring and second, the facts had been the present and the late of the facts of the facts as shown by the gentlemen mentioned would nave been playing to the press gallery,

SCENE OF THE ACCIDENT. The Kellys got water from an old-fashioned well back of the house. It had been in good working order during the year they lived in the house, and they had no reason to find Then the supply of water became scanty. Ten days ago they found it impossible to draw water at all, and notified landlord Kintz. He sent for Andrew Philler, a man of thirty-five years or so, who lived at No. 130 Meserole street, and made his living L digging and cleaning wells around this part of Long Island. Philler said he would clean the Kelly's well for $25 and put it in good repair. Mr. Klutz made a contract with him to have the work done for that price, and, he says, warned him of the dangerous would yield no more water was that the sand had been filtering down with every Davis was given a six-foot drop. rain for years and finally choked the springs at the bottom. Philler came around and took a look at the well Sunday morning. He told Samuel Kelly he could clean it out in two hours and said he was glad to get so much money for such an easy job. Kelly explained about the shifting sand and its laughed and said he knew all about that. At 0 o'clock yesterday morning Philler came around to clean the well. He threw his coat down on the ground and began to let himself down.

When Philler got to the bottom he stood about half knee-deep in water. He began jabbing at the sand with his shovel to see the lowest course of the well-curbing. Mrs. Kelly heard the clink it made. At that moment all the wall of stone and the sand around and above it caved in on Philler. The whole structure collapsed like a punctured balloon. Mrs. Keily saw a boulder half as large as a man's body strike Philler on the back of the head. It had fallen twenty feet. He was in a half stoopstraighten up when the stone struck him

A large number of Socialists ELECANTIMPORTED HAIR BRUSHS. held a meeting in the Friedrichshain Brewery and grounds about it on Monday. During the evening a mob had gathered outside the gates and grew so large that the streets in the immediate vicinity became impassa-

It is estimated that there were 1,000 roughs present, who then made a concentrated attack, broke down the fences and invaded the park. They were met, however, by the Socialists, and a desperate fight followed, clube and sticks being freely med, but the timely arrival of mounted p lice prevented bloodshed. When the police themselves rode into the mass of fighters they were received with a shower of stones. They replied with heavy work with their swords and finally put the disturbers to flight. The Anarchists at the meeting explain the ensente by saying that the mob was incited to its attack by blatant agitators of the radical branch of the Anarchists not in sympathy with their peaceful methods, Viewing the situation through the medium of the press reports and their own private correspondence, the Democratic Senators are greatly encouraged. There seems to be light hope in the Democratic heart everywhere. The Tariff bill has been thoroughly exposed, and the best campaign material provided in years is now at hand and in acoundance. Speaking on this subject to day a prominent Democratic Senator said: "The outlook is promising for a sweeping Democratic triu-ph in November. Our party is in excellent trim and united at last on the subject of the tariff. Even the men who followed Mr. Randall to the last, oppose the McKinley bill. The Hepublicans, on the other hand, are very seriously divided, and not only on that but on other subjects. They fought amount themselves on the silver question, on the pensions question, on the Force bill, and really are wide apart on the question of taxation.

Force bill, and really are wide spart on the question of taxation.
Why, as strong as the debate on the Mc-Kinley bill has been on our side, the most effective things said against the measure for campaign purposes have issued from the lips of the Republicans themselves. Mr. Illaine led off in a short but most comprehensive denunciation of the bill, and we have had since then such critisims of the measure from Mr. Plumb and leading Republican mewsuspers in the Northwest as pit the narry completely on the defensive. No Democration the atimp this Fall need quote other than Republican testimony against the Mckingy bill. So unwise is the measure that it affords the best justification possible for the continuation of the agriculture of tariff reform and the making of that again the issue in 1892.
